"CLASS ONE WEEK"

Moves Forward Classification of More Than 300 Men—Appeals Numerous and Local Board Busy.

The following registrants were withdrawn from deferred classification by the Local Board last week. The government said that the percentage of men in class 1 of the first classification was below the average, and the Ohio county board was instructed to again go over their list of registrants and reclassify them in an effort to bring the number of class 1 men up to the standard. Ohio county's percentage in the first classification was 24 per cent, which ranked along the top of a majority of the boards of the state.

The cases of all registrants who were given deferred classification at the District Board, will go back to that body for reconsideration.

WEDDED AT NIGHT.

As an evidence that the colored folks of Hartford are observing the thirty-six hour law, some of them cannot find time even to marry during the day and have to wait till their day's work is over. A case of this sort was that of Mari Talbert and Lydia Griffin, both of whose "complexions were the shadowy liveliness of the hunched sun," when they appeared at the residence of Judge Cook last Wednesday night at the hour of ten and asked him to tie the knot. The Judge was preparing to retire but he admired their nerve and determination, performed the ceremony and sent them away happy.

SMALLPOX AT CENTERTOWN.

Dr. J. L. Smith, of Centertown, was in Hartford Monday, reports a number of cases of small-pox in Centertown and vicinity. Mr. Charles Roark's family are affected as well as a little girl by the name of Goodson. Sanitary measures have been taken to curb the disease and it is hoped an epidemic will not spread.

ANOTHER CAESAR MAKES A CONQUEST.

We believe it is said that a wolf carried Romulus and Remus, ancestors of the famous line of the Caesars, into Rome. We don't know whether this was true or not but it is true that a Caesar has bagged a wolf, probably a descendant of this famous wolf of Rome. But this was not Julius nor Augustus Caesar, but John Caesar, and the town was not Rome, but Fordsville.

For several weeks past the chickens have been rapidly disappearing from the people's back yards in Fordsville, assigning no reason for their disappearance. No thief could be found, and all appearances pointed to foul play on the part of some woodland animal. Mr. John Caesar, who lives about two and a half miles from the town, lost some chickens in these raids and he and several others began to trail the wolf, as it proved to be, to his den. Mr. Caesar succeeded in wounding him with a shot, after which he killed the marauder which proved to be a genuine wolf. He was skinned and his hide placed on exhibition at Dr. Denton's store in Fordsville.

DOCTORS MEETING.

At a call meeting of the Ohio Co. Medical Society, last Friday at Dr. Taylor's office in Hartford, for the purpose of seeing how many more could be spared from our territory to join the medical Corps of the Army and Navy. The following facts were found: There are 31 doctors registered and legally qualified to practice, of which number 5 are in the service now, leaving 26 or one for about every 1000 of the population. Of these 26 doctors, 9 are above 55 years of age and for that reason disqualified for military service. Some of them do not practice at home and others not actively. This would leave 17 active men under 55 for the work here and to supply the needs of the military. It was decided that about one third of these could be spared if actually necessary but it would throw very heavy work upon those who remained in anticipation of this condition, and is even now upon us. The following resolution was adopted: "That the Doctors of the county be requested to make an extra or increased charge for both night calls and had condition of the roads. The purpose being to discourage night calls. So that the doctors may get sufficient sleep and to encourage road improvements so that he may respond to more calls in less time. You see, for several years, not a young man has taken up the study of medicine in this county for the reason that the education and financial requirements are too high for there tithes expected; and when the present members wear out, the supply will have to come from elsewhere.

The next meeting will be at Beaver Dam Friday, July 12th, from 1 to 3 P. M. Every doctor in the county invited.

NEW TAX LAW.

In this issue will be found a statement by Mr. Ward relative to tax collections under the new law. This law, which may be a success or a failure, we do not know which, should be given a fair trial and then its merits passed upon. We trust all the tax-payers of the county will thoroughly comply with it.

Mr. Gray, the government revenue agent, was here last week and conducted the sale of land on which taxes were due and which was unredeemed. Mr. Gray has not made out a report of same but will be here this week and will give out the total amount sold.

New Registrants Numbers Drawn.

Washington, D. C., June 28.—A second national lottery, to determine the order numbers of the 744,865 men enrolled last June 5 under the selective service law will be held here this week. The date has not been determined definitely, but the drawing probably will occur on Thursday or Friday, depending on the time the final complete reports are received from the district boards.

The procedure to be followed, it was said officially Monday, will be similar to that of last year, when nearly 10,000,000 men were given their relative places in the draft. The same bowl will be used, with capsules containing numbers up to the largest number of registrants in any district in the country. Last year 10,500 capsules were provided.

The number this year will be much smaller and it is expected that the drawing will be completed much more quickly.

The lottery system is based on the selection of master numbers, each of which governs similar numbers in every one of the 4,500 local districts over the country. Under the system of classifying registrants, adopted since the first drawing last year, however, it would not follow necessarily that the men holding the first number drawn would be the first called for service.

Mast Felt and Return Blank. Distribution of the questionnaire blanks, from which will be determined the class into which each man will go, was begun Monday, and when the new registrants fill these out and return them the number assigned them in the lottery then will become operative to determine their relative liability at the foot of the class in which they are placed.

Treaties between the United States and Great Britain for reciprocal operation of army draft laws to their citizens, including Canadians, were ratified late Monday by the Senate without a dissenting vote.

British subjects in the United States between 20 and 44 years of age—the British draft ages—and American citizens in the British empire between the ages of 21 and 31, would be subject to draft under the treaties, but they would be given the option of returning to their own countries for service under their own flag.

It is estimated that some 54,000 American citizens in the British Empire, including 36,000 in Canada, and 310,000 British subjects in the United States, including 60,000 Canadians, will be affected by the treaties. A new clause inserted in the treaty provides that citizens of a signatory nation exempt from the draft at home, such as the Irish and Australians, shall not be subject to draft in the country of their foreign residence.

TURKS ATTACK AMERICAN CONSULATE.

Washington, June 28.—Description by Turkish troops of the American consulate at Tabriz, Persia, and the looting of the American missionary hospital in that city, reported to the state department today, was believed in some quarters here to presage the long anticipated declaration of the existence of a state of war between the United States and the Ottoman empire. Diplomatic relations have been suspended since April 20, 1917.

On the face of reports from the American minister to Persia, Caldwell, at Tehran, officials were inclined to believe the sackings of the American hospital, a Presbyterian institution, over the protests of the Spanish consul in charge as representative of American interests, furnished the necessary provocation for open hostilities between America and Turkey.

Advices, however, were meager. The minister explained he was only transmitting reports of matters not of his own knowledge. It is realized later reports might show the offenses were not so grave as now reported.

U. S. TROOPS TO ITALY.

Washington.—Count V. Macchi di Celador, the Italian ambassador, called on Secretary Baker today and, while no statement was made, it is understood the recently announced decision of the War Department to send American troops to Italy was discussed.

Leaders of all the allied governments, as well as officials here, have felt that no better way of demonstrating to the world that the nations at war with Germany and Austria have been solidified into a

Other Treaties in the Making.

The treaties were signed June 3 by Secretary Lansing and Lord Rading, the British Ambassador, after revision to meet objections made by Senators and will become effective on exchange of ratifications between the two Governments. It is understood that similar draft treaties now are being negotiated between the United States and France, Italy and other of the allied Governments.

Ratification of the conventions is made dependent, in a supplementary regulation adopted by the Senate, on issuance of a proclamation by President Wilson announcing formally that American citizens under 21 and more than 31 years old are not subject to draft under the United States selective act. This is a technicality to meet British draft laws and prevent the drafting of American residents in the British Empire who are below or above the draft ages as fixed by acts of the Congress.

Citizens of either country drafted by the other would not lose their citizenship by reason of their service, and each Government is given the right to issue certificates of exemption to their citizens, on application or otherwise, within 60 days after the ratification of the treaties.

Citizens of either country resident in the other and desiring to enlist under their own flag would be required to do so within 60 days after the conventions are ratified or return within that period to their own country.

Crowder Calls on States.

Protest Marshal General Crowder Monday directed Wisconsin to provide 500 grammar school graduates, and Ohio 180 negro grammar school graduates, qualified for general military service, for special training at army schools. The enlistment date is July 15. The call probably will be held open for volunteers until about July 1.

Wednesday or Thursday of this week may be fixed as the date for the drawing of order numbers for the young men who registered for the army draft on June 5. Announcement of arrangements for drawing awaits reports from half a dozen local boards records are incomplete.

The drawing will be held with formal ceremony in the Capitol, like that which fixed the order of nearly 10,000,000 registrants a year ago. The plan has not been made public, but it is understood to be a modification of the original scheme.

The law provides that the 1918 registrants shall be placed at the bottom of the classes to which they may be assigned by the local boards on the basis of their questionnaires. A large proportion of the nearly 800,000 registered are expected to go into Class 1.

single force with a single purpose could be devised than to have each nation represented in the armies on each front. Necessarily, however, the extent of the participation of any country on any front must be governed by questions of transportation and supply.

Italian troops are in France, forming a part of the international reserves at Gen. Foch's disposal, while French and British armies now are aiding in stemming the Austrian drive. There is nothing to indicate that it is proposed to send to Italy an American force that would be in itself a very important military factor on a front where men by the millions are engaged, but on the other hand, it will be sufficient to make it obvious both to the Italian army and people that the United States is in the war with whole heart and prepared to go to any extreme to achieve the common victory.

There is always a possibility that the Italian front will become a center of assault against the Teutonic forces. Officials here, before the Italian retreat last fall, saw great possibilities in a strategic way in shifting the front of attack to Italy. Sound military judgment would dictate the selection of the weaker foe for assault if other conditions left a choice between two possible fronts for action.

Columbus, Ind., June 28.—The Rev. W. H. Hook, of Tabernacle Christian church here, announced today that in a sermon at his church next Sunday evening he will answer conscientious objectors by proving that war is scriptural, and that it is a part of religion for a Christian to knock the stuffing out of any fellow who needs it as badly as the Hun.

FARMERS ON METTLE.

Dubuque, Iowa, June 28.—American food stock, increasing because of the effort of farmers, were classed as an additional guaranty of the successful outcome of the war by Secretary of Agriculture Houston in an address delivered before the Iowa Bankers' Association.

As to the agricultural effort during 1916 Secretary Houston said the American farmers had responded heartily to the call of the allied population for food.

"Farmers planted 23,000,000 acres more in leading food crops in 1917 than in 1916," he said. "They greatly increased the numbers of live stock in spite of exportation. They increased the number of milk cows by 390,000, of other cattle by nearly 2,000,000, the number of sheep, for the first time in a generation and a half, by 1,300,000, and of swine by nearly 4,000,000. In spite of exportations of horses and mules they increased the number by 454,000. The indications are that they will do better even this year."

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.

(Washington Star.)
President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton, said the other day: "It costs $10,000 to make an airman, and no airman should be foolishly reckless, for his country can't afford to lose him."
"I like to think of he Princeton boy who was asked, when he went from his training camp to the front: 'Well, are you prepared to die for your country?'"
"Not a bit of it," said the young layman. "I'm prepared—and well prepared—to make about six Huns daily die for theirs!"

CHURCH DEDICATED BY GERMAN SYMPATHIZERS.

St. Louis.—German sympathizers are believed by Federal authorities to have been responsible for dedication of the Hammett Place Presbyterian church here, because of verbal attacks on Germany launched from the pulpit recently by the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Johnston. When worshippers came to the church to-day they found the interior in ruins. Furnishings had been torn from the walls, an American flag and a service flag torn to shreds, pulpit and pews bucked with axes, a piano destroyed and a Bible and numerous hymn books mutilated beyond repair.

MAKING GOOD USE OF NATIONAL ANTHEM.

A Kentucky minister is accredited with having the bright idea of making good use of the National Anthem. It is said he was trying to raise subscriptions for some patriotic movement and asked all of his members who would give $2 to stand. Only two persons stood. He then turned around and asked the choir to please sing the Star Spangled Banner.—Buckeye News.

Rheumatism Arrested

If you suffer with lame muscles or stiffened joints look out for impurities in the blood, because each attack gets more acute and stubborn. To arrest rheumatism you must improve your general health, and purify your blood; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is Nature's great blood-maker while it also strengthens the organs to expel the impurities. Scott's is helping thousands who could not find other relief.

MEMPHIS DRUMMER TRUTH ON VIN HEPATICA

National Refining Co. Representative Says nine Doctors Failed to Give Him Relief—Takes Vin Hepatica and Says It's a Wonderful Medicine.

"I was so troubled with my throat and stomach for a year and a half that I had become very much weakened," says Mr. J. H. McCollum, traveling representative for the National Refining Co., 531 Walker Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

"Could only walk a block or two without having to sit down to rest. Since taking Vin Hepatica, I now walk two miles with less effort. My appetite was no good, but now it is fine. Vin Hepatica even makes me hungry an hour after I eat. Before taking Vin Hepatica my stomach could not retain what I forced on it. But now I eat anything without any bad effects whatever."

"I tried nine of the best doctors I could find without receiving any permanent benefits. I was going down all the time, but I have gained several pounds since I started taking Vin Hepatica prescription. I certainly would not be without it as long as I am improving as I am."

Come in and get a bottle of this truly wonderful nature medicine on our recommendation.

NO SON IN THE WAR.

The two of them were discussing the war. An only son of one of them had enlisted, and the father was telling his friend how sad it made him feel to think that this only child had left home and joined the ranks. He was patriotic enough, this father, but, some way, it seemed an awful tragedy to think the only child he had was risking his life in the struggle.

There was one thing worse than that, the other man said—and he spoke from the heart. That was not to have a son in the war. He had been eminently successful in business; he was contributing to every worthy cause; he was doing everything he could to help win the war. But he had never been blessed with a son, and today the greatest thing that ever has taken place was being pulled off and he was not represented in the ranks. He himself was too old to go. His daughter of course could not go. And there he stood, he said, with not a drop of his blood taking part in this biggest of all things. And he congratulated the man whose only son is wearing the uniform of his country.

It was a new idea. Here we have been honoring these men whose sons are in the war—as is proper—feeling sorry for them, pitying them in their loneliness. But we have over-looked the really lonesome man—the one who has no son in the service. We have failed to see that it is the fellow who is not represented in this great sacrifice that is being made for humanity who really deserves our sympathy and pity. The man without a son in the war can never know the satisfaction that comes to one who gazes upon the picture of his boy and realizes that that boy, typical of himself, is taking part in this great struggle, a satisfaction that only those can know who suffer in their anxiety for their offspring. For, however much we may try to convince ourselves that we would be happier to have our boys at home, or even to have no boys at all, the fact is that consolation comes to him who feels that his very heart and soul are in this great game that is being played for the salvation of the world.

WHY HE COULDN'T KISS HER.

In a fiction story in the July American Magazine, this scene takes place:

"Lois," he said, "you were right. As a business man I've been a Chinaman—with not a Chinaman's chance. I've got a new job. And I'm going to be awfully unpopular with everybody except William G. Dwight and—perhaps you. Oh, Lois, it's only two thousand a year to start, but—"

"I'd have married you if you'd only had a thousand for-forever, Teddy," she confessed, her voice very low and very sweet. "But I felt you had it in you to make good, and I wanted to bring it out any way I could."

"Impetuously his fingers brushed hers, in a caress as fugitive as a first kiss."

"It's just my darn luck to have it happen here," he said."

Give Courteous Attention When Telephoning

Concentration and courteous attention given to a telephone conversation is a mark of respect that will be appreciated.

Frequent interruptions and requests to repeat mar the pleasure of the talk. Concentrate on what is being said and talk with a smile. Courtesy is like oil to machinery—the lack of it will cause friction and friction in telephone talking is a thing to be avoided.

VAPOR BATHS IN LAPLAND

Writer's Strenuous Experience of Cleansing Process Finishes With Being Basted.

In Wide World Frank Hedges Butler describes a vapor bath in the land of the Lapps. He says:

The bathhouse is a small wooden structure generally situated some way from the dwelling house. It is divided into two compartments, one to undress in, while the other contains the oven which produces the steam. The oven is arched with large stones or pebbles, and heated by a fire placed beneath. Undressing in the first room, one enters the heated compartment. After a short rest on a wooden form or bench, which contains a place for the head, the attendants come in and bathe you. Cold water is thrown over the stones and the hissing vapor soon sends up a cloud of steam. The higher you sit from the floor the greater the heat. As more water is thrown over the red-hot stones the vapor becomes so intense that one can hardly breathe. We were soon gasping for breath and covered with a profuse perspiration which issued from every pore of the skin. Hanging up in the room were tender branches or twigs in a green state and retaining their leaves. Dipping these in water, the attendant began lashing and whipping me across the legs, shoulders, loins and back, till my body seemed quite red with the switching. The basting over, I was then washed with a soft flannel covered with soap, after which a jug of the coldest water was thrown over my head and body.

JOKE ON SCHOOL VISITOR

Fortunately Hamilton Mable Was Well Able to Appreciate Unconscious Humor of the Children.

The late Hamilton W. Mable, the well-known American essayist, was one of those genial men who enjoyed a joke on themselves. Illustrating this phase of Mr. Mable's character, it is told that when he was a student Mr. Mable made an address in which he told this story:

He had visited a school in Philadelphia in which there was a daily fire drill. The teacher regularly asked the students, "Children, what would you do if fire were to break out in this building?" The children all repeated in chorus, "We would rise in our places, step into the aisle, and march quietly out of the building." On the morning when Mr. Mable visited the school, while he was sitting quietly on the platform, the teacher stopped before the pupils and said, "Children, what would you say if I were to tell you that Mr. Mable is to speak to you this morning?" The children promptly replied in chorus, "We would rise in our places, step into the aisle, and march quietly out of the building."

Interesting Life Statistics.

On the authority of experts representing forty-three leading life insurance companies in the United States, it appears that a spinster lives longer than a married woman. Business women live longer than business men. A woman who takes an endowment policy lives longer than a woman who takes an ordinary life policy. It is not easy to explain why an unmarried woman survives a married one, nor why a business woman survives a business man, but the longevity of the endowment woman is believed to be due to the determination to live until the policy matures. Will power is hardly less important in many cases than physique and must always be reckoned with. Even in disease a man or woman possesses a natural tendency toward health, and cures which often are attributed to medicine are really the assertion of the will.—Capper's Weekly.

Maida Hill.

It is now more than a century since an English army fought in Italy, and won the battle of Maida over the French. Napoleon had vowed to conquer Sicily, and for that purpose the French pushed on into Calabria, and began to make extensive preparations. But the English forces for the defense of Sicily prepared to deal a blow on the mainland. A force of 5,000 men landed in the bay of St. Euphemia, and the battalions of the French fell before the bayonets of the British. Napoleon's hopes were shattered at a stroke. But the "dally-breader" from Kilbourn traveling into London, by way of the Edgware road, never suspects as he passes by Maida Hill and Maiden Vale, the origin of the name.—Christian Science Monitor.

When the Laugh is on You.

People are not very much inclined to laugh at the girl who is always ready to join in the laugh against herself. It is the one who assumes airs of tremendous superiority, and seems to feel herself infallible, who needs to be afraid of making a slip. Even if people laugh at the girl who laughs at herself, there is always a tenderness in it, a kindness that takes out all the sting. Learn to enjoy a joke on yourself.—Exchange.

Spoiled the Good Thing.

Bobby had a bad habit of waking up in the middle of the night and crying dismally until one of his parents would walk him to sleep again. One night Bobbie began to cry and his mother said to her husband: "Dear, you'd better walk the baby." Father grumbled and baby howled and finally spoke up sobbingly: "Yes, dear; I think you had better walk the baby." After this his habit was no longer indulged.

HOW COLD AFFECTS SOUNDS

Numerous Examples Can Be Given, but Exact Reason Is Hard to Explain.

A close observer describes two phenomena of nature not easily explained: First, that natural sounds are very different in the colder than in the warmer months of the year; and, second, that waters have different tints during the colder and warmer months.

A number of examples occur to prove the first phenomenon. Who has not noticed the contrast in the noise of the wind in different seasons when it flows around the corner of the house—in summer what a soft, mellow tone it has and in winter what a harsh, rough whistle?

Then, again, let us stroll along the banks of a stream in May, June or July, and we will observe that the water will then make a gentle, bubbling sound, while in November or winter it will, with not great volume, make a hoarse, gurgling noise.

Still again, if we ramble in the woods during late spring or early summer, we cannot but notice with what a softness and mildness the wind has been blowing through the tops of the trees; on the other hand, what a roaring it makes in cold weather.

Perhaps the trees being with or without foliage may cause some difference, but it will be observed in May, before the leaves are out to any extent, there is even then a marked difference between that time and December. Often we have heard it along telegraph wires during the summer and winter, and have noted the contrast.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

DISEASE SPREAD BY ANIMALS

Scientists and Physicians Have Prepared a Strong Indictment Against the Beasts.

Although animals are not affected by the sickness and communicable diseases of man, yet, for some unexplainable reason, the scientists and physicians declare that a whole host of oftentimes fatal ailments of mankind are traceable to the beasts, says Popular Science Monthly.

The horse is blamed for spreading glanders, rabies, lockjaw and other diseases of five or more syllables. Dogs and cats are branded as the circulators of rabies, parasitic worms of different kinds, fleas and ticks.

The cow is the worst offender. The list of diseases laid at her barn door is headed with tuberculosis and grows constantly more blood-curdling, until we wonder why physicians and scientists consent to the use of milk, butter and cheese which still lead the dietitians' list of nutritives.

Rats, squirrels and fleas spread the bubonic plague. We are prepared to believe that lice and bedbugs, flies and mosquitoes are the rapid transit lines for yellow fever and malaria. We are willing to forego the luscious oyster all the year around, if need be, to avoid typhoid fever.

Clearer Values.

All life and action upon the snow have an added emphasis and significance. Every expression is understood. Summer has few finer pictures than this winter one of the farmer foddering his cattle from a stack upon the clean snow; the movement, the sharply defined figures, the great green flakes of hay, the long files of patient cows, the advance just arriving and pressing eagerly for the choice morsels—and the bounty and provision it suggests.

A severe artist! No longer the canvas and the pigments, but the marble and the chisel. . . I see the hills, bulging with great drifts, lift themselves cold and white against the sky, the black lines of fences here and there obliterated by the depth of the snow. Presently a fox barks away up the next mountain, and I imagine I see him sitting there in his furs upon the illuminated surface, and looking down in my direction.—John Burroughs.

Little Known of Shooting Stars.

Our knowledge of shooting stars extends into the oldest history of humanity, back into prehistoric times. Yet today no one knows exactly what a shooting star is, or from where it comes. An hypothesis proposed in 1875 and generally accepted today, is that meteorites are fragments broken from small planetary masses by volcanic explosions, brought about by a sudden expansion of gasses, steam and probably hydrogen. The broken bits, after their separation, are believed to arrange themselves in swarms which cross the orbit of the earth in accordance with a definite law. Shooting stars, then, undoubtedly come from within our solar system and are broken bits of a world body destroyed by volcanic events. Many meteorites have been found in Arizona.—Popular Science Monthly.

The Sixth Sense.

Human beings have a real sixth sense, says Science, in the shape of a sense of equilibrium. This sense is coming in for much intensive study today, because it is probably the most important qualification for the successful aviator. It has been found to reside in three tiny canals in the inner ear. These three canals are located in the bone of the skull and are filled with a liquid in which nerve filaments from the auditory nerve terminate. In some way not yet clearly understood, through these canals and nerves the individual can tell, without being able to see or feel, just how nearly upright his position is. The sense is much more keenly developed in some people than in others.

U. S. ALONE CAN

LICK GERMANY.

Paris, June 28.—"I have lived both in Germany and in the United States and I believe that America alone could beat the Germans."

Lord Northcliffe made this statement here in an article in the Petit Parisien.

"I have absolute confidence in Wilson Northcliffe said. 'It is he who must decide the Japanese question. Last month he sent 250,000 soldiers to Europe, although he had promised only half that number.'

"People say President Wilson is slow to action, but transporting with a rush such a vast number of troops is an enormous undertaking. We understood the significance of the rush and the vast figures.

"Frankly I would rather President Wilson should devote himself to the transporting of men rather than to solve the Japanese problem. 'The President does one thing at a time, but it is wonderful how he was able to train 100,000,000 citizens despite German and anti-aided propaganda and many German-Americans in the population.'

"Germany," the British publicist declared, "is beginning to weaken. The British, American and French blockade now is much firmer and slowly is strangling the enemy."

GERMANY STRONGER THAN

SHE WAS THOUGHT TO BE.

Washington.—For a quarter of a century Germany has been concealing from the world the strength of its man power. This was the declaration that C. D. Usher, of Amherst, Mass., made here to Senator Hitchcock, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Mr. Usher told Senator Hitchcock that General von Hindenburg made this personal declaration to the Misses Usher in 1913.

The daughter of the Massachusetts man at that time were visiting Field Marshal von Hindenburg's daughters in Germany.

The German leader told the American girls that Germany had been telling the world it had a population of 68,000,000.

"But we have 90,000,000," he said.

The explanation was that the vital statistics and birth-rate figures were camouflaged and distorted.

Von Hindenburg explained to his American visitors that the illegitimate birth rate was twice as high as the figures presented to the world. Germany had been claiming that it had an illegitimate birth rate of 25 per cent. when it was actually 50 per cent.

Does It Seem Fair?

"After man came woman"—O, voted. Yes and she has been after him ever since.

The rain Friday night was to the arid baking farmhands what a Balm of Gilead is to an aching heart.

People will now cease saying, "What is so rare as a day in June," and exclaim, "What is so hot as a day in July!"

Harvest time is over, and many Hartford business men have histers on their hands. First the math, then the aftermath.

Every sweet has a bitter and every rose a thorn. You can't go fishing for the mosquitoes and you can't go plunking for the chiggers.

Army writers state that they have received more applications for enlistment in the Aviation corps than in any other branch of the service. This is the first time we have ever heard of a majority wanting to go upward.

At the last moment Hon. Press Kneball, former congressman from the Seventh district, died to get on the ballot in the August primary for U. S. Senator, opposing Ollie James. In our opinion the Hon. Press has about as much chance of beating Mr. James for Senator as a tail-wagging dog has of getting through the lower reformatory.

Some poetical quotations:

Two fellows named Spear are into a fight. One has cracked the other's lid. The cop is coming—Shakespear.

Robbie has come in from the skating, cold and shivering. He sits on the stove—Bobbie Burns.

A tramp sits on a box car and his feet drag the ground—Longfellow.

Reports reach us that the great wheat crop in years is being created throughout the United States, and not here alone but in every all the Allied countries. Some may think us superstitious, but we cannot help but believe, like Lowell, that God is still behind the shadow, keeping watch above his own, and Providence will see to it that the cause of right and justice triumphs.

There are many "wild rumors of the foe's advance" and speculations as to where the Hun will strike next. Some think the next point of attack will be the American front and are growing pessimistic about it already. Never fear. The Hun realizes that when he goes up against the American he is up against the toughest proposition he has yet met, and we believe he will be a little bit shy about tackling him.

Are the boys who have gone to the front to fight our battles deserving of a Service Flag? We think so and so do you, and there should be one purchased either by the Fiscal Court or in some other way, and hung in the court house yard with a star on it for every boy who has left Ohio county, and is now in the army. The flag should be large enough that additional stars could be added for those that will go in the future. Think it over—talk about it, and let's see if we can't get this Service Flag. If it has to be paid for by popular subscription, we are in our part.

The events of last week were momentous and may have a far-reaching effect. The cries of a starving population and an hundred thousand workmen storming at the gate of Vienna betoken that something is afoot in the land of the Double Eagle. Though reports that reach us are vague and insufficient for us to build any hopes upon, yet we cannot help seeing a glimmer of light piercing the gloom of war. There is unrest in Austria; no doubt on that matter. But the curtains of Hun censorship are drawn so closely, and the black walls of German vigilance tower so high, that only faint echoes of the great uproar can reach our ears. The present strike way come to naught—doubtless will, put down by the Kaiser's bayonets. But sometime the storm will break in its fury, and when it does the angry calls of the down-trodden masses will come to us, and it will be like the roar of the sea.

The papers announced recently that the Americans are in Lorraine. If you will take your war-map and run your finger down to the south eastern end of the French battle-line you will find that these troops occupy a point some fifteen or sixteen miles inside German territory and within a few miles of the upper branch of the Rhine. This is a mountainous country, and most all of the fighting must be done with artillery, hence the inactivity. But we believe there is another reason. The Germans realize that almost all their coal and iron are as well as phosphate and the ingredients for ammunition comes from this section and a forward push of twenty miles by the allies would probably seal their doom. So they are trying to keep the French and English and keep them busy elsewhere. But the Americans will not stay still long, and when they move, it will be forward. And the sooner they move, the sooner the war will end.

There are some who deny that the Sinn Feiners are in sympathy with the German cause. A recent scene described by an Associated Press Correspondent in Ireland is enough to forever fix those status in the eyes of Americans. He tells of the embarkation of some thousand German prisoners from a camp in Ireland. Thousand of people lined the waterside, sang German songs and cheered the prisoners. In the same town when the pictures of American soldiers were flashed on the screen at a theatre, the crowd hissed and jeered. This is enough to get a Yankee "dander up." We have always liked the Irish, admiring their sentimentality and wit and pitying their disappointment in their national aspirations. But we can stand no nonsense from them in a time like this. When they publicly line up with our enemy and ding their dirty epithets at our soldier boys who have crossed the seas to fight for their freedom as well as ours, we think they have gone far enough. In their fanatical antagonism to England they have allowed themselves to become the dupes of the German autocracy which is a thousand times worse enemy to them than England ever was. And to see them aiming their shafts at America, who has always championed their cause, is disgusting beyond the power of expression. It is easy to see why England does not grant Ireland home rule. It would be like turning her enemies in at the back door. The very moment Ireland obtained home rule, she would enter into an alliance with the Germans. There is only one argument the Huns and Sinn Feiners understand, and it is not a legislative one; it is the sharp end of a bayonet. And if the Irish persist in their demonstrations, they will get their lessons along with the Huns.

BIG FAIR HERE THE FOURTH.

A special one day fair, under the management of Dr. L. B. Bean, will be held here Thursday, July 4th. Through error in last week's issue some of the program was omitted, but it is printed in full in this week's issue, and we call the reader's attention to it.

Dr. Bean is well experienced in this work and always conducts an excellent fair. A splendid program has been arranged, including a number of races and other attractions, and a great attendance is expected. Prospects are good for one of the best fairs ever conducted here, and those who come to Hartford that day will doubtless enjoy a treat.

FORMER LOCAL EDITOR WEDS.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Cilley announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Braden Cilley, of Stanley, to Mr. Lyman Gentry Barrett, of Barrett's Ferry, June 22, at Battle Creek, Mich. Rev. Blanchard, of Marshall, Mich., performed the ceremony and the bride's mother was her only attendant.

Mrs. Barrett was formerly a teacher in Daviess county. The groom is a member of the Machine gun Company, 338th Infantry, Camp Custar, Mich. He was previously in the revenue service in Daviess county, but immediately before entering war service was an editor of an Ohio county newspaper.—Owensboro Messenger.

The above clipping will be of interest to the many friends of Mr. Lyman G. Barrett, of Barrett's Ferry, who is a well-known and much liked Ohio county boy. Before entering the military service, Mr. Barrett was local editor of the Hartford Herald and was serving in this capacity when he was called. He is one of Ohio county's most popular young men and his friends will rejoice with him in his new happiness. The Herald extends to him our warmest congratulations, wishing for him a speedy return from the carriage to his newly-made bride.

THROAT CUT BY WIRE.

Miss Lon Ella Barnett, daughter of Jeff Barnett, of Nagans, was the victim of a serious accident Sunday when her throat was badly gashed by a wire. Miss Barnett, who is staying with Mr. Henry Pittie's family near town, was starting on a visit to her sister at Mr. Alva Carter's intending to bring her home with her for a few days stay. She was riding horse-back. A wire, which was used to transfer a portable mailbox, had been stretched across the road and had sagged so that it caught her as she rode, as she did not see it.

Her throat was badly torn, a gash being cut very deeply, laying bare her wind-pipe. It bled profusely. It was nearly half an hour from the time she left the house until she returned and they learned of her accident. Despite her weakened condition, from the loss of blood and the pain of her wound, she walked nearly a half mile to her home. She received medical attention and is getting along very well.

BOY INJURED BY HORSE.

Powell Tichenor, son of Alva Tichenor, of near town, received a painful injury Saturday evening when a horse that he was leading by the bridle became frightened, reared up and struck him with his fore feet. Young Tichenor was leading the horse in front of the residence of Jailer Worth Tichenor's, when he lost control of him. The animal suddenly humped forward, striking the young man and cutting a deep gash in his forehead. The horse fell in harness and several held him while it was removed. The buggy was somewhat damaged.

The young man's wound was dressed and he is getting along nicely. He is a nephew of Jailer Worth Tichenor.

JAPAN NOT TO ACT IN RUSSIA WITHOUT AMERICAN SUPPORT.

Tokio.—The newspapers to-day report that, as a result of the deliberations of the Advisory Board in diplomatic affairs, Japan has decided not to comply with the request of the Entente, and to refrain from intervention in Siberia at present.

In diplomatic circles it is believed that Japan, unless directly menaced, will not act without the support of the United States.

London.—The embargo on Chinese action in Siberia has been raised, according to a Harbin despatch to the Daily Mail. The reason given is that Russia is taking no steps to prevent the Germans from advancing in the east.

A NATIONAL PRAYER.

Our Country, God, we offer thee,
And plead her cause on hended knees;

Her might we know lies in Thy will,
Whose voice the mighty waters still;

In meek humility we pray
God bless America today.

God bless her flag arrayed on high,
Its silken folds against the sky;

Her homes, her institutions dear,
From gun-crowned fort to house of prayer;

Lord, hear her children when they say,
God bless America today.

Look down from Heaven in Thy love,
And shower Thy blessings from above;

On snow-capped heights, and sunny vales,
Her waving strands, and flowery dales;

Throughout her land shed Freedom's ray,
God bless America today.

May she be just, at home, abroad,
And merciful as Thine, O God;

Grant that Thy word shall be her guide,
Let wisdom in her midst abide;

That all the world may with us say,
God bless America today.

Can fondest hearts do more than bleed?
Can lives yield more than noble deeds?

Have more than sacrifice, present,
Our souls give but their intent?

To lay these in Thy feet, and pray,
God bless America today.

STARK UNIVERSITY CUTS
SCHOOL YEAR TO AID U. S.

F. E. Merriam, Federal district agricultural agent here, has been notified by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky that that institution, in its effort to help win the war, has arranged to condense its course and will open on October 14 this year, instead of September 9, the usual date. At the same time the term will close on April 18 next year, instead of continuing until June, as is customary.

The changes will enable agricultural students to remain on the farm during the busy fall season and return home in time to assist in putting in the crops in the spring.

The communication to Mr. Merriam states:

"In order to accomplish as nearly as possible the usual amount of college work in the shortened year,

Saturdays will be utilized for class work and other holidays will be reduced to the minimum. This, of course, means harder work for both teachers and students, but the college regards it as a patriotic duty.

"The demand for graduates from agricultural colleges, to all various positions was never so great as it is now. The College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky is making an earnest effort so as to adjust its courses that its graduates may measure up to the former high standard and, at the same time, cause no serious interference with the work on the farm from which its students come. Its facilities for instruction are better than ever before, and it is hoped that the advantages afforded under the new system will be so appreciated by the citizens of Kentucky that a record attendance will be provided this fall."

FEDERAL CEREMONIES OF THE GYPSIES.

There was much excitement among the crowd waiting for the

Gypsy Three States as well as the pitiful cries from a Gypsy band when two of their children, a little girl about ten years of age and one smaller, fell into the river. The younger child was rescued by another child from the river bank, but the other girl went to the bottom of the river and never came to the top again. The Gypsy Three States churned the water with the big wheel of the boat in an effort to bring the child to the top of the water, but failed, after which Martion Turner, a fisherman, made a dash with a net and rescued the body, for which we are told he received ten dollars from Gypsy tribe. The funeral expenses and burial of the little Gypsy after they had purchased a nice casket was out of the ordinary from the fact that the owner was a native citizen. The funeral was prepared for in the tribe and the casket with towel, mirror, comb, a hatchet, sewing and knitting needles, thread for sewing, articles of clothing and various trinkets, after which the body was covered with a snow white cloth. The tribe burned candles around the casket until the employees of the store locked the doors to go home. The remains were carried to Wickham cemetery Saturday afternoon where interment was had after more ceremonies peculiar to their race, and the tribe turned their back on the little new made grave in a strange land going to their unknown. —Ballard Yeoman.

BAKER WILL NOT OPPOSE CONGRESS.

Washington, June 28.—Secretary of War Baker in response to inquiry, explained to the newspaper men that he would not oppose any action by Congress looking to extend the draft age limit. The news that Mr. Baker has modified his position somewhat with respect to the draft age limit is highly important because of its possible future effect on so many thousands

—if not hundreds of thousands—of able-bodied American fighting men over 31.

It appears that after Secretary Baker's statement to the newspaper correspondents last week that the question of extending the age limit had not been considered by him at all, Provost Marshal General Crowder came to him to say that he had been asked to appear before the Senate

Military Affairs Committee on the matter of the draft age limit.

General Crowder's views were not in harmony with those of Mr. Baker, and the former told the Secretary he had no desire to embarrass the War Department's policy and feared perhaps that his testimony might lead to do so. General Crowder is known to favor in principle an extension of the draft age limit after Class 1 is exhausted, but he has not stated that he favors extending it from 18 to 45. Probably 19 to 36 would be more in line with General Crowder's judgment.

Would Take Older Men.

This means that after Class 1 is exhausted General Crowder favors getting men physically fit and without dependents over 31 before taking men with dependents, and, in Classes 2, 3 and 4. General

Crowder expects that all the 2,420,000 of Class 1 will be exhausted by the end of the present year. So far 1,347,000 have already been called into service.

Secretary Baker told General Crowder not to feel in any way restricted in giving the Senate Military Affairs Committee his frank judgment, together with facts and figures upon which that judgment was based. It is not the custom to restrict army officers any way in their testimony before congressional committees, but in the interest of governmental team work it is sometimes advisable for an officer to know in advance whether his testimony is going to go counter to policy already determined or decided upon.

The effect of Mr. Baker's announcement that he would not oppose the judgment of Congress on the draft age question at once removes the prospect of opposition by the administration and permits this question to be thrashed out openly and decided by the consensus of the nation's opinion, as reflected at the Capitol. There is plenty of time for consideration, as Class 1 will not be exhausted this year, and the flow of men power to Europe will continue for months before this matter has to be definitely decided.

Extension is indicated.

Nevertheless, Mr. Baker's statement will be taken in many quarters as an indication that the draft age limit will be extended either during the present session of Congress or immediately after Congress reassembles in December.

Representative Kahn, ranking Republican member of the House

Committee, favors raising the age limit up to 45 at once, and Chairman

Chamberlain, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, is inclined to agree with him.

Hard to See Through.

Bobbie's father was trying to raise incubator chickens, and one day as the little fellow was watching a chicken breaking its way through the shell, Bobby remarked: "I see how he gets out, all right, but I can't see how he got in."

Only Dine.

A great artist was once describing the decadence which in so many cases seemed to unfold the middle period of life. "Yes," he said, "old men dream dreams, and young men see visions, but middle-aged men only dine."

Live Wires.

Measuring the current carried from electric wires by streams of water from fire hose, an Italian scientist found that chemical extinguishers were the most dangerous fire-fighting equipment to use around live wires.

CONCLUDED.

There is a man in our town
Who is so wondrous wise,
Instead of swatting golf balls now,
He goes to swatting flies.

—Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Eagle.

And if he swats them night and day,
With all his might and maul,
We'll say he's earned the right to play

A game of golf again.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But if he swats them night and day,
Inteat each one to kill.
He will not have the strength, we say,

To swat an iv'ry pill.
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

There was a man in our town
Latent his hands to harden,
And so instead of swatting flies
He worked in the garden.

—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

But we've the man in our town
That's hardest yet to beat—Instead of swatting flies and such He's gone out shocking wheat!

INTERESTING LETTER FROM ILLINOIS.

East Moline, Illinois.

Editor Herald, Hartford, Ky.

Dear Sir: With your permission

I will submit a short letter for your paper. Enclosed you will find one dollar for balance on second year. I am very glad to have The Herald visit at my home. It tells me the happenings back in Ohio county, the home of my boyhood days. But I do not see any correspondent from Cromwell, or Selet or Balztown. Where art thou? I say, presto, Come forth, and tell us why you hide! The great C. R. J. & P.

shops at Shyvis, Illinois, with its 25-00 employees, in the third Liberty

Loan Campaign went 100 per cent as did the whole of the Rock Island system.

41,875 employees, every one carries not less than $50 and some several hundred. Besides we are in the Red Cross Community War Chest

Mess Fund, Smoke Fund, Service Flag and some other things. And just think, we are Union men! Don't that get your goat? We are patriotic as any set of men in this good old U. S. A. We are sending our boys and friends and willing to go ourselves, many of us, if it was necessary. We say, Hurrah For the United States, and our Union. May old Glory ever wave over the Blue and the Grey, and our Federation.

We have painted some three or four of our men yellow and rode them out on a blue because they were Pro-German. So we are on the job and we have voted rum out of the tri-cities. In last two years we have improved our school system, also our morals. And Uncle

Sam's Laboring men and women have done these things, and we are doing all we can to make this a better world to live in. As to the administration, we think it is doing everything possible under the circumstances. But look out, Democrats of Ohio county, your banner is trailing very low. You have been bun-coed get a hustle on, redeem yourselves. Why, we use to carry the county, now look what you have done. Old Kentucky is certainly black in politics, in a few places any way. I would almost as soon be an I. W. W. as a Republican of the type that stole the election in Ohio county last election. If I was the good people of Ohio county I would get busy and win back by honest votes what you lost by fraud. Now if any one wants to see some thing doing, come and visit Illinois and the tri-cities. We are doing things up here, and no joke. Now with kind regards for all my friends and neighbors, and good wishes for The Herald and hoping to hear from some of my friends I am Yours very truly,

C. M. PEGLEY.

END IS NEARER.

Manchester.—"The end of the conflict is nearer," declared Sir

Auckland Campbell Geddes, Director of Civil Recruiting, in an address at a luncheon here Monday.

"If Germany were able to smash the separate allies," Sir Auckland said. "She would be able to re-establish her power and prestige.

"Now, however, her allies are falling and the bonds between the elements of the Central Powers are weakening. The end of the conflict is nearer."

Backward.

James was standing beside the cradle of his month-old brother, trying to quiet him, when his mother came in and picked the baby up. After picking him up, she said to the father: "I really do not know what is the matter. Joseph will be eleven months old tomorrow and he has only two teeth."

James said: "Gee, that ain't nothing. Grandma's eighty years old and she only has one."

Italy Queen of the Air

By GARRET SMITH.

Italy is queen of the air.

England's defense of the sea with her Mammoth Navy; France's heroic infantry checking the first onrush of the Hun at the Marne and at Verdun; America's vast contribution of materials and money in the past and of fighting reserves in the future, are matched by Italy's contribution to the allied air navy, which will determine as much as any one factor our final victory over the Teutonic Powers.

The general public, amazed at the marvelous performances of Italy's air fleet during Cadorna's drive over the Alps, at the record breaking feats of Resnati, Laureati and D'Annunzio and at the wonderful mechanical achievements of the great Caproni and Pomilio planes, still have little realization of the vast scope of Italy's achievement in aviation since she entered the war three years ago.

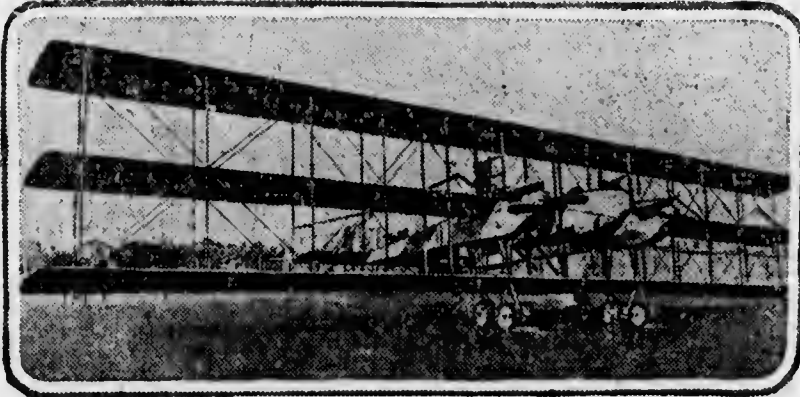

In February, 1915, there were in all Italy only 100 aeronautical workmen. When that country entered the war a few weeks later she possessed altogether only 80 flying machines and those mostly of the French type. But the Italy of poets and singers is also the Italy of mechanical genius, of Marconi and Tesla, of Caproni and Pomilio. Seeing with a clear vision that the fate of civilization lay largely in the supremacy of the air, and particularly the need of air defense for her own long coast line, her statesmen set out to build a new industry from the ground up. They gathered together a vast number of men of energy and creative ability in order that they might bring their contributions of research, invention and technical knowledge to a development of those machines of offense and defense with which battles rapid-firing guns. Italian designers by synchronizing propeller revolutions with machine gun-tire have placed machine guns on planes that fire 600 shots a minute through the propellers, which make 1,200 revolutions a minute, the calculation being such that no shots strike the propeller—one shot passing between the blades with every two turns of the propeller. In addition to the machine guns a multitude of bomb throwing, position finding and other devices of great utility in battle and in bombardments have been perfected by Italian genius.

Italy has developed the best type of machine for each class of war work. Those for night bombardment are the Caproni biplane of 450 and 600 H. P. and the Caproni triplane of 600 H. P. These planes have an average speed of about 100 miles an hour and carry a large load of bombs. For day bombardment one of their most efficient machines is the SIA type, with one engine of 700 H. P., which develops an average speed of 125 miles an hour and has a capacity for 700 pounds of bombs.

Classes of Fighting Machines.

One of the best Italian machines for reconnaissance work is the Pomilio two seater of 300 H. P., with a speed of 125 miles per hour, carrying two machine guns and a large load of bombs. Similar to this is the 300 H. P. SIA. Besides this, they possess for rapid work a Sva biplane, a single seater of 250 H. P. and a speed of 130 miles. Italy's best fighting planes are the Pomilio single seater of 250 H. P., with protective armor and carrying two machine guns, with a speed of 150 miles an hour, and the Ansaldo single seater of 250 H. P., with a speed of 150 miles.

ITALY'S MAMMOTH TWENTY-FIVE PASSENGER PLANE.

are being fought today. As a result Italian aviation has established a new record in the history of industry.

A New Born Industry.

To the immense and famous Italian industrial centers, already strongly organized and active in general automobile construction, was added the new industry of aeroplane construction. As a result Italy today has over 40,000 experienced workmen in this field, and her government possesses over 3,000 military and naval planes and is supplying others to her allies by the hundreds. Many of the planes America has sent to the French front were made in Italy, and Italian planes are being shipped here for the training of our aviators.

Such firms as Fiat have accomplished marvelous results in a short time. This concern turned out a 700 H. P. aerial engine, and other firms developed successful engines of 100, 200 H. P., etc. The big Pomilio plant was erected in three months' time. Today there are more than 25 aeroplane factories in Italy, and that country has the distinction of producing the fastest aeroplane in the world, the fastest seaplane, the largest flying machine and the best climber.

A great secret of Italy's success was the large and powerful engines she had already perfected in her automobile industry. These engines, developing from 500 to 700 H. P. and later 900 H. P. and over, made possible the building of much larger planes than had ever before been supposed possible.

Italy's aeroplane plants have been kept in operation, notwithstanding adverse conditions, such as lack of coal, when wood was substituted for power generation, and the buildings in which the people worked were so cold that varnish would not dry. Another great obstacle was the lack of chemicals. Right here Italy pays a tribute to America. It was American raw material that made this great development possible.

Record Breaking Planes.

New designs of aeroplanes are being turned out constantly by the Italian factories. One of her machines produced last year is capable of carrying 11 tons. She has planes capable of carrying a crew of 25 men and is now developing one with a capacity of 50 men and a horsepower of 3,000. She also has planes capable of traveling more than 900 miles without a stop. One of the Italian type of machines carries blue

In hydro-aviation the best Italian machine is the Macchi, that for reconnaissance work, having a speed of over 100 miles an hour, and the fighting machine having a speed of 125 miles an hour. A Pomilio plane recently put out a 250 H. P. machine with a speed of 157 miles an hour, capable of climbing 10,000 feet in six minutes.

Giovanni Caproni, creator of the famous Caproni machine, is planning to build after the war a flier carrying 50 passengers, with which he expects to cross the Atlantic in 48 hours. In fact, he had hopes at one time of establishing during the latter part of this year a Paris to Washington mail route, flying by way of Portugal, the Azores, Newfoundland and New York City. The longest leg of this trip over water is 1,193 miles, which, he says, is well within the range of the present Caproni machine. It would be a striking repetition of history if the nation which gave us Columbus, the first man to sail to the new world by water, should also furnish the first to follow that route by air.

Not only in building, but in handling aeroplanes have Italians excelled. One of the world's records taken by an Italian was the feat of Captain Giulio Laureati, who established a new long distance flight record by flying more than 900 miles without stopping from Turin to Naples and return in August, 1917. Lieutenant Resnati astonished Americans during his flights here by going up 17,000 feet with 13 men on board at Newport News and by flying from Milleda to Langley Field, near Newport News, a distance of 322 miles, with ten passengers aboard.

Excel in Dirigibles Also.

Not only in heavier than air machines, but in the dirigible lighter than air type has Italy excelled. The Forlani dirigible has a record of lifting four tons of bombs 18,373 feet against the best Zeppelin record of 13,123 feet with a similar load. As a submarine chaser her non-rigid type of dirigible has been very effective.

We cannot say what will happen in the very near future, but we can affirm that Italian technical men, fully realizing the always increasing exigencies of war and the value of aviation in the war, are continuing to work for ever newer and more powerful types which will in the future enable Italy and her allies to keep that supremacy in the air.

"SOME" AS AN ADJECTIVE

Popular American Slang Has Attached a Wealth of Meaning to the Word.

The American habit of coining new meanings for words already known is closely allied to that of coining words, writes C. Jefferson Weher in the North American Review. Take, for example, the current slang use of that much used word "some." What a wealth of meaning and insinuation the American has invented for the word!

"Some" as an adverb may be heard in many places. For instance, in the Tegen valley district of Devon, the natives may say, "It did rain some yesterday." But the American would use the word as an adjective and say, "That was some rain yesterday." This use is hard to define. In the middle of the last century "some," meaning considerable, or notable, was called "a modern slang word." Today "some" is almost limitless in its capacity for application. It implies approval, enthusiasm, sarcasm, wonder, admiration, disgust—or amusement.

The seeds may have been sown in Cornwall, in Devon or in Lancashire, but I seriously doubt if a native of any of these counties would ever say enthusiastically, "We had some fun last night," or sarcastically, "This is some book!" Another word to which Americans have given a new meaning is the verb "raise." In England, men raise crops; in America, they also raise children.

CHINA LOSING TRADE IN TEA

General Opinion That Scientific Cultivation of the Plant Has Been Begun Too Late.

China's tea trade is not keeping pace with the world's consumption of tea. Scientific cultivation instead of old-time methods and the use of machinery are being used in the effort to regain the lost commercial ground. The ministry of agriculture has established a model farm, and the first tea grown on it was sent to market this year. It is said to have been of good quality, but no details are yet available of the equipment and methods employed. Foreign tea men seem to have little faith in the results of this attempted reform and consider it unlikely that Chinese teas will ever regain the leading place in the markets of the world. It is said that Chinese teas have less tannin than other teas, and that the finer grades are unsurpassed in delicacy of flavor; but the average tea drinker seems to find the teas of India and Ceylon satisfactory.

How Toasts Originated.

The custom of drinking the health of the most popular man at the table has its foundation in the ancient practice originated by the Greeks and adopted by the Romans of drinking to the gods and the dead, observes an exchange.

The Greeks and Romans later began the practice of drinking to each other, and from this arose the custom of toasting living men. But health drinking in its modern form, originating in England in the roistering days of Charles II, begins with the custom of drinking to the ladies or to any woman who happened to be the reigning belle of the court.

Many and various were the quaint customs associated with the toasts of those days. For example, in certain companies of military officers etiquette demanded that the cup should be passed from hand to hand.

In many midnight gatherings of Alsatia gallants stilled themselves in order to drink with their blood the health of the woman on whom their hearts were set.—Kansas City Journal.

When to Shut Your Eyes.

In an article about Thomas Edison in the American Magazine, William Maxwell, the vice president of the Edison company, said:

"One bit of executive strategy that I learned from Edison has stood me in good stead a dozen times. He had the wise habit of knowing when to shut his eyes. There are times in every organization when controversies arise between even the most loyal and best intentioned subordinates. Sometimes it is the wisest thing for the man at the top to know nothing whatever about them, to let them work themselves out. 'I learned a great many years ago,' said Lincoln, 'that in a fight between man and wife, a third party should never get between the woman's skillet and the man's ax-helve.'"

Tact and Charm.

Dinner conversation offers the opportunity to eliminate all disagreeable topics. To lay aside one's worries and keep one's troubles from intruding. The same should be said of all occasions and good form particularly denotes that dinners, and formal dinners in that, should be freed of personal business retailed.

At all times give interest as well as try to inspire it and one of the emphatic ways is to let the person who happens to be speaking have your undivided attention. Attention and concentration amount to about the same thing and should apply to what one is oneself saying as well as hearing.

In Prehistoric Times.

Bomechisel—Say, you! Whaddye mean by sneakin' into my cave an' beatin' up my daughter?

Stonehammer—Yes, I did call on your daughter and beat her up some. But I assure you, sir, my intentions were honorable.

Speed—Speed—Speed!

Uncle Sam pushed the clock ahead one hour to give more light.

Take advantage of it. You owe it to yourself and your country to make every minute count.

Use your car—passenger or commercial—to the limit.

Samuel P. Colt, president of the United States Rubber Company, helped awaken the country to the economic value of the automobile last fall. He said—

"Everything on wheels must be used and mobilized."

"The automobile is second to the railroads as an adjunct and supplementary to them in collecting and distributing merchandise."

"Owners should use their cars, both passenger and commercial, more and more."

Make the most of your car by using the tires that will extend its usefulness to the utmost.

Use good tires—United States Tires.

They last longest and carry you farthest at least cost.

There is a United States Tire for every car or truck—to guarantee uninterrupted service and greatest economy.

Our nearest Sales and Service Depot dealer will tell you which ones will serve you best.

United States Tires are Good Tires

We KNOW United Tires are GOOD Tires. That's why we sell them.
